2. In responding to this request, produce all responsive documents prepared, forwarded, considered, or reviewed.

3. In responding to this request, include documents obtained on Your behalf by Your counsel, employees, experts, agents, or any other persons acting on Your behalf.

13. To the extent a document subject to an assertion of privilege, a work product claim, or other objection contains any responsive information not subject to such assertion or objection, the information must be produced. Claimed irrelevance is not a lawful basis for redacting or failing to produce part of a document the balance of which contains responsive material.

14. For each document responsive to this request withheld in part for any reason, including the assertion of privilege, a work product claim, or other objection, indicate the portion of the document so withheld by stamping the words "MATERIAL REDACTED" on the document at an appropriate location on the document that does not obscure the remaining text.
